D. Healing Grove Memorials At San Sevaine Park

Public Works Manager Dan West provided the staff report.

Commissioner Key asked if there had been any discussion on this item before the Parks, Community and Human Services Commission; there had not.

Commissioner Gordon asked how the layout was decided; Incredible Edibles worked with family and staff identified the two areas as most open areas.

Commissioner Jones asked if there had been any community surveys; there had not.

Discussion was held on who would have been responsible for bringing this item before the Parks, Community and Human Services Commission, layout, and surveys; there had not been any previous policy on any of those items and no action since then.

Director Nelson shared that in February, the City Council indicated its expectation that the Parks, Community and Human Services Commission should review park projects, modifications to parks and new parks. Public Works and Community Development staff will bring all future park projects to Parks, Community and Human Services Commission for review in the future.

Genevieve Tovar spoke on the San Bernardino massacre that occurred on December 2, 2015; and the symbol of the groves in the community.

Erica Porteous spoke on her family's civil service to the community; the effect the loss of her sister had on her and her family; and the symbol of the groves in the community.

Hiwet Haile spoke on the effect of the loss of her husband, Isaac Amanios, had on her and her family; and the help the healing groves provide her and her family.

Mary Petit provided some context for the healing groves; spoke on the different cities' permitting process; and the need to provide trees as a living memorial in honor of the victims of the San Bernardino massacre; mentioned Edible Gardens would maintain the gardens even after the grant ran out (3 years)..

Denay Harris expressed condolences to the families and spoke in opposition to the process for how the healing groves came about, where they were placed, the lack of public notice, lack of permits, and lack of community involvement. Ms. Harris spoke on her family's civil service and tragedies and not being able to do a memorial for everyone on public property that was already established. Ms. Harris is angry that nothing can be done about it now.

City Clerk Lewis stated that written communication was received in support of the healing groves.

Discussion was held on the healing groves being built with no permits and waived fees.

Discussion was held on the memorials being installed with no consideration by Parks, Community and Human Services Commission; there is no policy in the city that makes it a requirement for something like this to go forward.

Discussion was held on the Parks, Community and Human Services Commission now reviewing all park projects; Manager West will bring the information forward.

Discussion was held on how tall the groves will grow; Manager West indicated they will grow about 25-30 feet and will be managed with pruning and trimming. The footprint of the memorial will not expand.

Discussion was held on how many parks there are near San Sevaine Park; Manager West indicated there are three with Hunter's Ridge Park being the closest. Also nearby are Coyote Canyon Park - a 12 acre park with open space, picnic shelter and recreation area; Fontana Park - a 35 acre park with open space, but no shelters; Rosena East and Rosena West parks – 15 acres, with shelters, playgrounds, restrooms, and open space.

Discussion was held on how many memorial parks there are in Fontana; out of 45 parks, only Veteran's Park has a memorial; and there is a Memorial Rose Garden near the Pacific Electric Trail.

Discussion was held on the process for those memorial parks.

Discussion was held on any negative feedback received for any of the other memorials in other parks; staff was not aware of any negative comments or feedback.

Commissioner Jones spoke on the Parks, Community and Human Services Commission's role in the community for increasing community; and as a community we want to honor those lost and those experiencing loss, when tragedies happen, we really together as a community. There are 45 parks that residents can go to, many in close vicinity and he sees no gain in undoing such a beautiful monument to honor and respect those we lost. Commissioner Jones spoke on maybe not having enough memorials in Fontana, and thinking about how we can honor people and bring the community together.

Commissioner Gordon spoke on understanding the desire to have input from the community; but, to honor the victims, no changes should be made to what we have now, but there should be policy on how we proceed.

Commissioner Vaquera spoke on visiting the park and conducting a personal survey of those visiting the park and he received no negative feedback. Commissioner Vaquera spoke on the events of December 2 affecting more than just the immediate family of the victims; it affected the whole community and country. Commissioner Vaquera understands not being able to build monuments for everybody, and wishes there was no reason to build memorials, but it was not previously required for the Parks, Community and Human Services Commission to look into it; but now, we will look into the process and how to improve it.

Commissioner Johnson spoke on surveying citizens to get their input.

Chairperson Key spoke on being a retired public servant and moving forward; the memorials are already there, we cannot disturb what is already in place.

ACTION: Motion was made by Key, seconded by Gordon, and passed by a vote of 7-0 to accept and file the staff report and to request that any changes, any improvements, any renovations, any additions, to any city park, recreational facility, any city service area that is under the jurisdiction of this commission be brought before the Commission prior to approval.
